The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services now covers some costs for patients over age 65 who use remote monitoring technologies.

While remote monitoring can help control the cost of care for those with chronic diseases such as congestive heart failure, COPD, asthma and diabetes, device monitoring can take a toll on limited resources that need to be focused on direct patient care.

Does your office have the time and resources to monitor multiple dashboards for multiple patients?

TriageLogic can help bridge the gap between remote monitoring data and care decisions.

- Our experienced, registered nurses are available around the clock to monitor your patients' device dashboards for alerts and abnormal values.
- A call is made to the patient to triage the situation.
- The patient is given instructions based on your customized orders and protocols – including at-home care, a follow-up appointment in your office or emergency intervention.
